ON VIEW ON THE MORNING OF SALE, from Nine a.m.

☞ Should any of the Lots remain unsold, the Sale will be resumed by PRIVATE TREATY on the following day.

AQUAGRAPHS.

☞ This wonderful invention is of most recent discovery, and is produced in Colour Printing by a solution of Water, Body, and Pastel combined—a composition of the old Crayon drawing School. They are afterwards manipulated by hand colouring, embossed to fac-simile the touches of the brush, then varnished. They were pronounced by the Society of Arts to be quite unique and recherchè.

OLEOGRAPHS.

☞ As to duration, this Colour Printing may outlast even Oil-Painting, as, in place of the chalky covering of the painter's canvas, which so often is the cause of decay in an Oil-Painting, a paper can be used which is made from the very best materials, and which is united with the linen beneath it by the best binding and durable means. By the printing with a number of colours the paper receives a saturation of oil, by which its durability is heightened. The same colours that are used for painting are mostly also usable for colour-printing. Several specimens of colour-printing, at the British Museum, are in as perfect a state as the day they were executed, now over 300 years ago.

WATER COLOURED AUTOTYPES

Are taken direct from the original pictures in Carbon Autotype, and afterwards coloured by Artists of the highest reputation in Water Colours. Carbon is permanent, and 100 years hence will be as perfect as the day it was issued.

Conditions to be read at the time of Sale.

NOTE.—The Frames are manufactured with the best seasoned material, and guaranteed gilt with pure English Gold Leaf, and made by Messrs. Brooks & Sons, 17, Great Portland Street, London, W., Publishers to the Queen. Established 1750.

The Auctioneers would beg to draw especial attention to Lot 22, considered the finest Engraving ever produced, and engraved by S. Cousins, Esq., R.A. Also, Lot 38, the Aquagraph of "Shoeing," which was fac-similed from the original picture of Sir Edwin Landseer, by permission of the authorities at South Kensington Exhibition, which original was a gift to the nation by the late Jacob Bell, Esq.

NOTE.—The whole of these works are Copyright, and the bona-fide property of Messrs. Brooks & Sons, the eminent Fine-Art Publishers to the Queen. Established 1750.

22 The Royal Family of France in the Prison of the Temple, November, 1792. ... ... ... ... ... ... E. M. Ward, R.A.

£15 15s. India artists' proof. Engraved by S. Cousins, R.A., at a cost of 3,000 guineas.

THE painter has chosen the moment, in one of these tranquil days of captivity, when the King is taking his daily afternoon sleep. The scene is the Queen's room in the square tower, opening on the turret chambers. By the side of the sleeping King, pale and sad, but with a face in which the dignity of the Queen is blended with the anxious love of the wife and mother, sits Marie Antoinette, mending her husband's coat This incident is authentic. The Commune had offered her, for such work, the assistance of women of its own selection and appointment, but she had declined such service. The Dauphin, his boyish play silenced lest it should disturb its father's sleep, is arranging his shuttlecock at the feet of his aunt, Madame Elizabeth—who followed Marie Antoinette, first to the Conciergerie, in August, 1793, and thence, two months later, to the scaffold. The Princess Royal, afterwards Duchess D'Angoulême, the only one of this mournful group who survived the Revolution, is watering a vase of lilies of the valley. On the skirt of the Queen's gown sleeps the little dog which attached itself to her during her captivity, and was cruelly repulsed in its efforts to follow her from the Temple to the Conciergerie.
